

MYSTERY OF DREAMS.

The Wonders the Brain Sees in the Fraction of a Second.

It is not unusual to hear one say that he has been dreaming about something all night, when possibly his dream occupied only a very short time. Many attempts have been made to measure the time occupied in a dream, and records appear from time to time in the papers showing that often elaborate ones occupy but a few seconds. The following incident is told by a gentleman who vouches for its accuracy:

He was engaged one afternoon with a clerk in verifying some long columns of figures that had been copied from one book to another. The numbers, representing amounts in dollars and cents, were composed of six or seven figures. The clerk would read, for instance, "Fourteen, one, forty-two, twelve," making the amount of $14,142.12, and the gentleman would answer, "Check," to indicate that the copy was correct. Page after page had been read as rapidly as the words could be uttered, each number receiving the "check." The work was drowsy, and it was with difficulty he could keep his eyes open.

Finally sleep overcame him, and he dreamed—dreamed of an old horse he had been accustomed to drive twenty-five or thirty years ago. He could not recall any special incident connected with the dream except the locality and the distinct sight of the horse and of the buggy to which he had driven him. He awoke suddenly, and as a number was ended, called "check." He was conscious of having slept and of having dreamed and said to the clerk: "Charlie, I have been asleep. How many of those numbers have I missed?" "None," he replied. "You have checked every one." Close questioning developed the fact that of the figures $14,142.12 he had heard the fourteen and the twelve, but had slept and dreamed during the time occupied in rapidly uttering the words "one forty-two." He tried by reading other numbers to measure the time and thinks it could not have been more than half a second.

Another story is told of a man who sat before his fire in a drowsy condition. A draft blowing across the room set a large photograph on the mantel to swaying. A slender vase was in front of it, and the man remembers wondering, in a mood of whimsical indifference, whether the picture would blow forward and send the vase to the floor.

Finally a gust of wind did topple the picture, and it struck the vase. The man remembers having been curiously relieved in his state of drowsiness that at last the "old thing was going to fall and be done with it."

Presently he was in the midst of a complicated business transaction in a western city miles away. All the details of a new and unheard of scheme were coming forth from his lips, and a board of directors was listening. The scheme prospered. He moved his family west. Fragments of the journey thither and glimpses of the fine house he bought came before his vision.

A crash woke him. The vase had struck the floor. He had dreamed an unaltered life covering years, and all in the time it took for the vase which he had seen toppling before he fell asleep to fall five feet and break—YOUTH'S Companion.

Japanese Idea of Beauty.

Professor Okakura of Tokyo in a lecture delivered in this country said that the Japanese ideal of feminine beauty varied a little between Tokyo and Kyoto, but on the whole the Japanese considered that a woman should not exceed five feet in height, should have a comparatively fair skin and be well developed, should have long, thin and jet black hair, an oval face, with a narrow straight nose, rather large eyes, nearly black thick eyelashes, a small mouth hiding behind red full lips, even rows of small white teeth, ears not altogether small, thick eyebrows and a medium forehead, from which the hair should grow in circular or Fujiyama shape—that is, a shape recalling the truncated cone of the famous volcano.

It Reminded Him.

The best remedy against a lapse of memory is the piece of thread tied about the finger. But there is a well authenticated case of a man whose wife tied a piece of thread around his finger in the morning to remind him to get his hair cut.

On his way home to dinner he noticed the piece of thread. "Yes, I remember," he said and, smiling proudly, entered the usual shop and sat down before the accustomed artist.

"Why, I cut your hair this morning," said the astonished barber.

A Singing Reproof.

A gentleman had an inquisitive servant named Thoms, whom he once saw in a letter of his. The next day he received another letter by the servant, containing a postscript: "You may be a good answer by bearer. He is the precaution to read this letter."

Persons in favor with the master are out of favor with the servants.
